Conclusion

Evidence-based clinical audit and feedback is recognised as a valuable approach to implementing evidence into practice. Recognising and understanding the role of professional culture, organisational support and leadership in this process is pivotal to its successful utilisation.